Julie . Assistant US Attorney Glenn Mackinlay, who is the coordinator of the Federal anti-gang group, would like to meet with someone from the Lab to discuss what they might do to expedite federal gang crack cases. He would like to meet sometime next week. Are you interested in going? If you are, we can set up a time. Chuck

I still think we should pursue a joint application with DPS for this year's NIJ funding however, it will not be as lucrative as I initially hoped. The funding formula provides a base allocation to each state as determined by the state's population (75% of total available funds) and optional competitive funding (25% of total funds). Last year the base funding was $218, 238.

I think we should propose a position for our laboratory with the competitive funding; to increase sample throughput, decrease turnaround time and work towards national accreditation. By applying for the competitive funding we would not be taking anything away from the DPS base allocation. I am open to any alternate ideas and/or suggestions to refine this a little before we approach public safety about a joint application.
